“ Lou, you were one in a million and your mom's heartbeat. Your bond was so strong and unique. I will never forget how you always greeted me with hugs even if you were in a hurry. You wowed me with your ability to solve those rubik cubes and in record time. Your smile was infectious. I can still picture that smile that lit up a room. You were a champion yo so many people and touched so many lives. Your many talents inspired so many. And thank you for all of your "uber" rides to the Phillies games. I know that you are looking down on us. Please send a special angel to look after your mom. She misses you so much! Be at peace Lou. I'll always miss you!

“ Lou!! I can't believe that I am writing this. It was just early last week that I last saw you at the gym.

You were the first one to greet me when I moved to Philadelphia and started at Anytime Fitness. I knew right then you were a good dude and had a knack of making friends.

You were always a happy guy, I don't think I ever saw you any other way!

Thank you Lou for being a great friend! I will truly miss you and the conversations we had. Heaven got a good one, maybe they need a personal trainer up there or something :)

I'm leaving a pic of your last text message to me. It sums up the kind of person you were and how goal oriented you were achieving what you wanted to. I will definitely continue that in your honor my friend.

God keep you safe up there and don't cause too much of a ruckus going after the ladies in Heaven!

See you when I see you again man!

“ Devastated to hear that you've passed Lou :(

I spent all of last night going through our old conversations and the crazy ideas we had for taking over the world.

We never had the chance to meet in person, which is something I will always regret.

Meeting you through gaming 15 years ago was a great joy for both myself and the rest of our team of Europeans. It was a culture shock having a loud, overly confident American coming in and bringing his irreverent brand of humour to our world.

I know we haven't played games together for at least a decade, but I've enjoyed talking with you every 3-6 months or so and seeing what you were doing with your life. I read through our conversations last night, and your words of encouragement and pride at me running my business... they still mean the world to me.

Thank you for being a wonderful friend and a genuinely brilliant and loveable human being. You'll be sadly missed my friend.

“ It was an honor to work with you, your beaming smile and attitude brightened up everyone's day when you worked and it's such a tragedy that you've left us. We'll miss you always.
