“ I miss you. Not a day goes by that you're not in my thoughts. I wish I could have taken your place; you don't deserve anything that happened to you. I want you to be here, living your life. I don't know if heaven is real or what the afterlife entails, but whatever it is, even if it's just being buried next to you, I can't wait for that “ Lynn was always smiling in high school. When you were in the presence of Lynn, you knew he was going to have a funny story or that he would say some thing uplifting or kind to make you day. That is just about the most beautiful legacy a person could wish for. To be remembered as someone who was always consistently kind and smiling. I send your family love and light and will keep you in my prayers as you heal. The sky has gained another star. Rest in peace,

“ I always loved that he did not care what anyone thought and that he would just laugh at those who tried to judge. He almost always wore two different sneakers that I can remember. I loved his huh huh hah laugh. Can hear him now. I was impressed that he made friends with so many people. And they hooked him up if they could. He will be missed. Like a brother to me.
